Dear J. Brian:

The organization of the Montréal 2005: United Nations Climate Change Conference, held in Montréal from November 28 to December 9, 2005, was an enormous challenge. The full calendar of events, be it events running simultaneously with official meetings or parallel cultural and scientific events, bears witness to this daunting task.

It was with great pride at the conclusion of these meetings, that I was able to say: mission accomplished! We put on an event, not only of exemplary quality, but with an intensity and efficiency that will produce, I am convinced, significant results as we work to address climate change, and will encourage the entire world to continue and step up their efforts to reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

Much of the success goes to you. Indeed, the success of this meeting was a result of the exceptional devotion of people like you, our team of hard-working organizers and generous volunteers, and I would like to express my gratitude to you all for having made Montréal 2005 a success of which we can be proud.

Your time and your devotion to the task at hand enabled Canada, once again, to make its mark on the world scene. Furthermore, the discussions that took place in this ideal environment will ensure a better quality of life for Canadians.

Yours sincerely,

Stéphane Dion
